SUMMARY

Dr Penelope Ridings is an International Law Consultant in private practice in New Zealand and the Pacific. She has broad experience in public international law as a career diplomat with extensive practical experience in developing, implementing and adjudicating international law. She has acted for New Zealand before the International Court of Justice and as Counsel and Advocate before the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea. She has been an independent panellist in disputes before the World Trade Organisation (WTO) and has represented New Zealand as Counsel in WTO disputes where New Zealand was a principal and third party.

During her career in the New Zealand diplomatic service, Dr Ridings has served as the Chief International Legal Adviser (2011-2015) as well as the Head of Trade Law (2004-2007). In these roles she was responsible for providing strategic leadership and direction, representing the Government in multilateral and bilateral negotiations, and providing international legal advice to Government across a wide range of international legal issues. She also served as Ambassador to Poland, Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania (2008-2011) and High Commissioner to Samoa (2001-2004).

She has extensive practical experience in the negotiation and implementation of international agreements and other international legal instruments. This has included negotiations for the development of international and regional fisheries agreements and free trade agreements. She is currently Legal Advisor to the Western and Central Pacific Fisheries Commission (WCPFC) and led the New Zealand delegation to the negotiations which established the WCPFC Convention.

Dr Ridings researches and practices in the field of public international law, including in particular international dispute settlement, arbitration and mediation, law of the sea, fisheries, environmental law, and international trade and investment law.
