MFAT is seeking feedback on a non-binding open plurilateral to resolve non-tariff barriers

MFAT is seeking views from the public on a new initiative to address non-tariff barriers. Non-tariff barriers are rules that unfairly restrict or distort trade, businesses often describe them as red tape, bureaucratic rules, or hassles. New Zealand is taking a fresh approach to this problem through negotiating an open plurilateral – this means an Arrangement that's open to multiple countries to join if they choose to - that would bring together economies interested in promoting free and open trade. For more information on the plurilateral please visit our website at the below link:

Canada Federal Election Result

On 28 April Canada held its federal election with the Liberal Party returning to government for a fourth term. Prime Minister Mark Carney, who has previously served as the Governor of the Bank of Canada and the Bank of England, ran on a platform of economic and political stability during a period of uncertainty. Carney has signalled key economic priorities for this term are removing trade barriers between Canadian provinces, making it easier to approve natural resource projects, increasing innovation in the economy, and responding to US tariffs.

South Korea's Exports Hit Record in April Despite U.S. Tariff Setback

In April 2025, South Korea's exports increased by 3.7% year-on-year to a record USD58.2 billion for the month, marking the third consecutive month of growth. Imports declined by 2.7% to USD53.3 billion, resulting in a trade surplus of USD4.88 billion. However, exports to the United States fell by 6.8% to USD10.6 billion, attributed to significant tariffs imposed by the Trump administration, particularly affecting automobiles and machinery. Conversely, exports to China rose by 3.9% to USD10.9 billion, and shipments to the European Union surged by 18.4% to a record USD6.7 billion. Exports to ASEAN countries increased by 4.5% to USD9.4 billion, and shipments to India grew by 8.8% to USD1.7 billion.

Policy Hackathon Competition on International Trade and Food Security

The WTO Secretariat, Geneva Trade Platform, and CropLife International are coordinating a “Policy Hackathon” on International Trade and Food Security. The competition is open to higher education students enrolled in any Masters or PhD course to compete in teams of between two (2) and four (4). As part of the competition, teams will spend three days envisioning, designing, and articulating a policy proposal for consideration by an esteemed panel of leading international experts and policymakers. The Hackathon encourages participants to consider creative and innovative solutions to pressing global challenges, with the chance to win prizes worth of up to 2,000 Swiss Francs. The competition will take place from Friday 29 August (09.00 CEST) to Sunday 1 September (09:00 CEST). Participation is entirely virtual and open to graduate students from anywhere in the world. Registrations close 1 July (15.59 CEST).

Labor re-elected in Australia

- Prime Minister Anthony Albanese’s Labor Party has comfortably won re-election. It will govern with a significant majority. With races still to be called in several electorates, the Labor Party has won at least 88 seats in the 150-member Australian House of Representatives, up from 77.
 - The outcome for the Coalition is the worst ever. It has secured at least 36 seats, down from 53. Opposition Leader Peter Dutton also lost his seat of Dickson, which he had held since 2001.
 - Prime Minister Albanese has confirmed that his leaders’ group will stay in their portfolios – Deputy Prime Minister and Defence Minister Richard Marles, Foreign Affairs Minister Penny Wong, Treasurer Jim Chalmers, Finance Minister Katy Gallagher, and Trade Minister Don Farrell. Beyond that a reshuffle of some portfolios is expected to be announced by PM Albanese in the coming days.
